AGENTS OF CHANGE

How can you affect the world around you? Whether at the office, at home or in the community, we sometimes feel our actions are not moving the needle in a way that makes a difference. In this motivational keynote, John shares universal traits that shape change-makers and tricks for using these characteristics to add a spark to your sphere of influence.

RISKING

What is one thing that the world's greatest leaders and innovators have in common? They embraced risks as a part of their growth. John will inspire your audience with his personal journey of action in the face of fear. He will train your attendees in his best practices for stepping outside of their comfort zones. He will instruct participant how to reframe risks in order to use them as markers for the discovery of their passions and gifts.

THE SERIOUS BUSINESS JOY!

What do you do when you reach one of your goals and the accomplishment doesn't give you the exhilaration you always dreamed of? Let John educate your team on how to maintain joy in the midst of the grind. Attendees will learn to recognize the signs when they are losing their excitement and the simple steps they can take to reclaim it.. Joy-and its absence-is infectious.

John Wilson is a championship winning athlete, speaker and advocate for the importance of fun, play and passion in work and life. John's winning mentality and talent with the ball allowed him to experience the sport at the highest levels of the collegiate and professional game.

He currently serves as an Assistant Coach with the Charleston Battery, ambassador for the sport to underserved communities and thought leader for business communities on risk taking, trailblazing and teamwork.

"After getting to know John and his public speaking, motivational skills, and utmost professionalism, I invited him onto a national sales team call at Cisco Systems, and he hit out of the park! He has an authentic style and a real way of connecting with the audience. I'd highly recommend him to help ignite your team!"
